

Happy Spring From Liberty Healthcare Services!

Greetings!

As the winter mountain climbing subsides, we are happy to welcome the Spring at Liberty Healthcare Services. We are also excited to announce the formation of our new subsidiary, Liberty Healthcare University. The University will focus on education of caregivers, professionals and the communities we serve. We look forward to continuing our mutually beneficial relationships throughout this Spring.

Happy Easter to you and your loved ones.

Warm Regards,

Kevin

April: Parkinson's Disease Awareness Month

An estimated 6.3 million people across the world have Parkinson's Disease - and the numbers are rising. With April representing Parkinson's Disease Awareness Month, it's important that we take a closer look at a disease that's increasingly affecting our population.

No Smoking Please!

There are numerous reasons to quit smoking: bad breath, yellow teeth, lung cancer, just to name a few. For many years experts have been telling us that smoking is bad for our health. Well, for those that haven't quit yet, maybe another stab the wallet during this tough economic recession will finally get you to throw in the towel.

As of April 1, there was a $0.62 rise in tobacco prices.

Furthermore, many tobacco companies have raised their prices to make up for the expected decline in business. So, if you haven't quite yet, your bank account may force it upon you now.

The Struggles of a Caregiver

Caregiving, although rewarding, can be an extremely draining experience, for both professionals and family members.

Autism Study

A surprise discovery is leading autism researchers at Yale University toward earlier detection and new therapies for children with autism -- possibly beginning in infancy.

That discovery is all about key differences in what captures the attention of children with autism compared to other kids.

Those differences are in place by the time kids are 2 years old and may start much younger, note the scientists, who included Ami Klin, PhD, and Warren Jones, PhD, of the Yale Child Study Center.
